

The going on the going on the desire to go on the shouting from the past the no desire to go back the seeded optimism the determined compulsion the desire to eat the need to smoke cannot stop

so removed in the wind and the sunshine cycling along a journeyman through the vans and the football stadium there to be passed and observed the bike hits a wall the face on the ground the crushed knee the forcible stop the desire to go on the bike resurrected the wheels set in motion the abyss suddenly past the hurt knee hurts continues reminds of what is not 1977

Publication history

1977, first published in this version 2007

© Robert J.C. Young 2007

To cite this poem:

MLA Style: Robert J.C. Young, 'The going on'. 2007. [access date]

<<http://robertjcyoung.com/going.html>>